A correspondent of the Mercury writing from Enches, is Western China, on the 22nd ult. says;-The epidemic which has been raging in many places along the Yangtage Valley continues with but little abatement. The Native doctors seem to distinguish between it and the ordinary cholers. It is very severe and fatal in the majority of cases, and appears to be mostly confined to dults. The people tell of its severity and suidenness with every evidence of alarm. A ertain doctor was called out one days in the frernoon to attend a patient with the "min i on wen" (the name by which it is called in wive circles) and on the following day was sent for to see the patient again, but in the interval the doctor had taken and succumbed to the dread disease. In another case an elderly gentleman was out to see the theatricals one afternoon, was seized on his return home ad dead_before morning. The Chinese mind is greatly exercised by this mysterious visitation, as well it may be, and are resorting to various devices in order to have it removed, the
